

What's Happening at Cornell Farms

June, 2012

Markets are back in full swing so the days are long at Cornell Farms.

All the cattle are finally out on pasture. We did a fair amount of artificial insemination this year with Rebecca and Kim sharing duties. It will be interesting to see who had the best success rate.

We've started haying. It's been good weather for that. Here's Kim cutting the hay; Garnet baling it and the final result with all the bales scattered over the field.

Rebecca is back in southern Ontario working for a large animal veterinary practise and milking 200 cows three nights a week. She is really enjoying it. She also travelled to the Montreal area to do a short-term placement at a veterinary practice there.

One of the highlights of June was our first barn concert – Kim Churchill with Benjalu as the opener. Both these young men are from Australia and if you ever get a chance to see them – GO!!!!!! Many of our regular concert goers are saying that it's our best concert ever.

Garnet has a job working as an environmental student for Rainy River Resources – a mine exploration company in the District. It is in his field of study so he is enjoying it very much. That has left us a bit short-handed on the farm so we are working very long days.

We are now getting ready for the Cornell Family Reunion in early July. We will have visitors from England, Australia, Alberta, Toronto,.....plus all the locals. It's sure to be a great time. One of the activities will be another barn concert with all local talent.
