

What's Happening at Cornell Farms

Spring, 2015

We've had a great start to 2015 at Cornell Farms. Kim and Pat were able to go on a bit of a holiday – visiting friends in Phoenix, Arizona and then traveling north to Elko Nevada for the National Cowboy Poetry Gathering. There were many stops along the way – the Grand Canyon, Monument Valley, Bryce Canyon, Salt Lake City, etc. There are pictures from the entire trip on the Cornell Farms' Facebook page and if you want to attend an extraordinary culture event of poetry, storytelling, music and fun, the Gathering is the place to be.

We were also able to clear some land around the farm to increase our available crop land. As land becomes more expensive in southern Ontario, farming in the north becomes a better option. Here are some pictures of that activity.

Calving started the first of March and has been going strong. We are over half done with two sets of twins so far.

All the yearling and two year old bulls we have for sale are now on line – on both the Cornell Farms' web page and you tube channel. We've used music from past performers at Cornell Farms. Be sure to take a look. Here are a few pictures of getting the bulls ready for their photo shoot.

Rebecca is working at the Kirkton Veterinary Clinic in Southern Ontario and having a great work experience. Garnet has been working as part of the environmental team on New Gold's Rainy River Project. It's been a busy time as they prepare the site for a new gold mine in the west part of the Rainy River District. It will provide welcome employment now that the paper and kraft mills have closed.
