

Scenes from the Kevin Fox Concert, August 5, 2009

One hundred and twenty concert goers were mesmerized as Kevin Fox combined his signature instrument – the cello with his charismatic voice to create a captivating musical tapestry of cello-driven folk/pop.

He had the audience in the palm of his hand with his first song – an instrumental piece written for a friend's wedding. He followed this with a performance of the Eurhythmic's "Sweet Dreams".

The audience was spellbound with his performance and illustrated their appreciation with a thunderous standing ovation at the end of it all.

Local singer-songwriter Sarah Hebert opened the concert with some of her original compositions. She has just released her first CD "The Fall".

She was joined on stage by Mike McCaig on guitar and Scott Barker and Shannon Darby on violin.

On her final number, she was also joined by Kevin with his cello. It was truly a night to remember – one of the best concerts we have ever had in the barn. Be sure to keep track of what these two performers have planned for the future via their websites: www.kevinfox.ca and www.sarahhebertmusic.com.
